Question No. 1 [CLO – 2] (30 marks)

(a). Read the following passage and answer the questions below: (12)

Did you know that education is a human right? But too many children around the world still don't go to school. And ^{Minor} an even larger number of kids who are in schools, aren't getting the quality education they deserve. ^{Minor} Nearly two-thirds of 10-year-olds are estimated to be unable to read and understand a simple text in most parts of the world. Without urgent action, ^{Major} this global learning crisis will become a generational catastrophe. Education systems were already failing our children even before the pandemic. ^{Minor} COVID-19 has exacerbated this learning crisis and children in almost every country have fallen behind in their learning. UNICEF is calling on governments to; reach every child and keep them in school, assess learning levels regularly, prioritize teaching the fundamentals, increase catch-up learning and progress beyond what was lost, and to develop psychosocial health and well-being so every child is ready to learn. ^{Major} Without ambitious action on basic reading and math, with a focus on the most marginalized children, we will fail to achieve the SDGs by 2030. We need a global effort to tackle the learning crisis head on. Together, we can help every child gain basic reading and math skills and unlock their potential.

'How to Break the Cycle of Poverty?' By David Krip

(David Krip is a professor at the Goldman School of Public Policy at the University of California, Berkeley)

The vicious cycle of poverty carries a profound negative impact throughout the world. A recent report from the American Enterprise Institute (AEI) details the remarkable power of the "Success Sequence" to generate upward mobility. The "Success Sequence" is a thoroughly researched, three-part formula which should be followed for overcoming poverty. It proposes to complete at least a high school education, to get a full-time job, and to learn to manage the finances before getting married. According to the study, 97% of millennial adults who followed the sequence are not poor, and this strong positive correlation continues across demographics including race, ethnicity, family background, and gender. Florida is a good example for this as the dramatic increase in high school graduation rate in the past twenty years and upsurge in work-based learning programs has led the youngsters to attain full time jobs with good pay scales. The "Success Sequence" is a potent formula for upward mobility as better Income and improved financial decisions guarantee increased tax collection and high return on Investment. The significance of these findings is striking to break the cycle of poverty in an economy.
